

Where the camera model changes the picture.
 View and window are chosen MECHANICALLY — best-gain test view, then the 224 px window with the largest drop in summed squared error over the outer disk ($\rho > 0.55$). Nothing here can be cherry-picked by eye. The two error panels of a row share one colour scale; display gamma only on the RGB ones.

ground truth

off

noncentral

squared error, off

squared error, noncentral

reception
00031.png

+2.72 dB on this view, local SSE −65 %, patch at $\rho = 0.77$

tunnel
00017.png

+0.83 dB on this view, local SSE −49 %, patch at $\rho = 0.77$

workshop
00023.png

+2.56 dB on this view, local SSE −54 %, patch at $\rho = 0.75$